

Adjunct Faculty
Spanish/Foreign Languages/Humanities

Position Summary

Mitchell College is searching for an adjunct professor who can teach general introductory level Spanish language courses, on-site. The ideal candidate would have an MS or Ph.D. and a teaching background that includes instruction of students with diverse learning styles. Working under the general direction of the Humanities Department Chair, this position is part-time (variable hour) and renewable each semester based on the College's enrollment needs.

With over 20 programs of study, Mitchell College is dedicated to providing a challenging education in a caring and cooperative student-centered environment. Mitchell College is a small, private, non-profit college that has been an invaluable resource for southeastern Connecticut for over 75 years. Mitchell's personal, mentoring approach activates strengths in our students that allows them to achieve levels of success and leadership they may not yet have imagined for themselves. Mitchell has a strong tradition of celebrating and supporting diverse ways of learning, and is committed to the broader community through partnerships and internships. Located on a beautiful waterfront campus in historic New London, it is also home to championship NCAA Division III athletics and the Duquès Academic Success Center, which includes the renowned Bentsen Learning Center.

Other Required Education and Experience:

- A master's degree is required; a terminal degree in the field of expertise is preferred
- Teaching experience highly preferred
- Skillsets should include experience with instructional technology, along with on-line and blended learning instructional delivery
- An understanding of Ability Based Education or competency-based education is also highly preferred

This is variable-hour position and is paid bi-weekly with a fixed per credit hour salary ($800 per credit hour). The start date will be September 2017.
